Hello. My name is Kindergarten Bear. I'm a helper in the kindergarten classroom. I will help you learn to count.

The first number is one. Count one teacher. Then say, "Good morning, teacher."

one

two

Now count to two. Two students are hanging their coats in their cubbies. They say, "Good morning, Kindergarten Bear." That's me.

Three is next. Count the hungry hamsters—one, two, three. Then you can help me feed them breakfast.

3

three

four

Now count to four—four pictures painted by one student. Do you see a picture of me, Kindergarten Bear?

I love five . . . five honey muffins for snack-time. I hope there's a muffin for me.

5

five

6

six

Count six paper flowers on the bulletin board. Each flower is a different color. There are six colors in all.

Here are seven picture books. The teacher will read a book at storytime. I know which one I want her to read.

8

eight

Eight is great! Count eight plants that we are growing on the windowsill.

Now we count nine—nine hats to put on at dress-up time. One of the hats is for me.

nine

10
ten

Here we go marching—ten kindergartners and a bear.
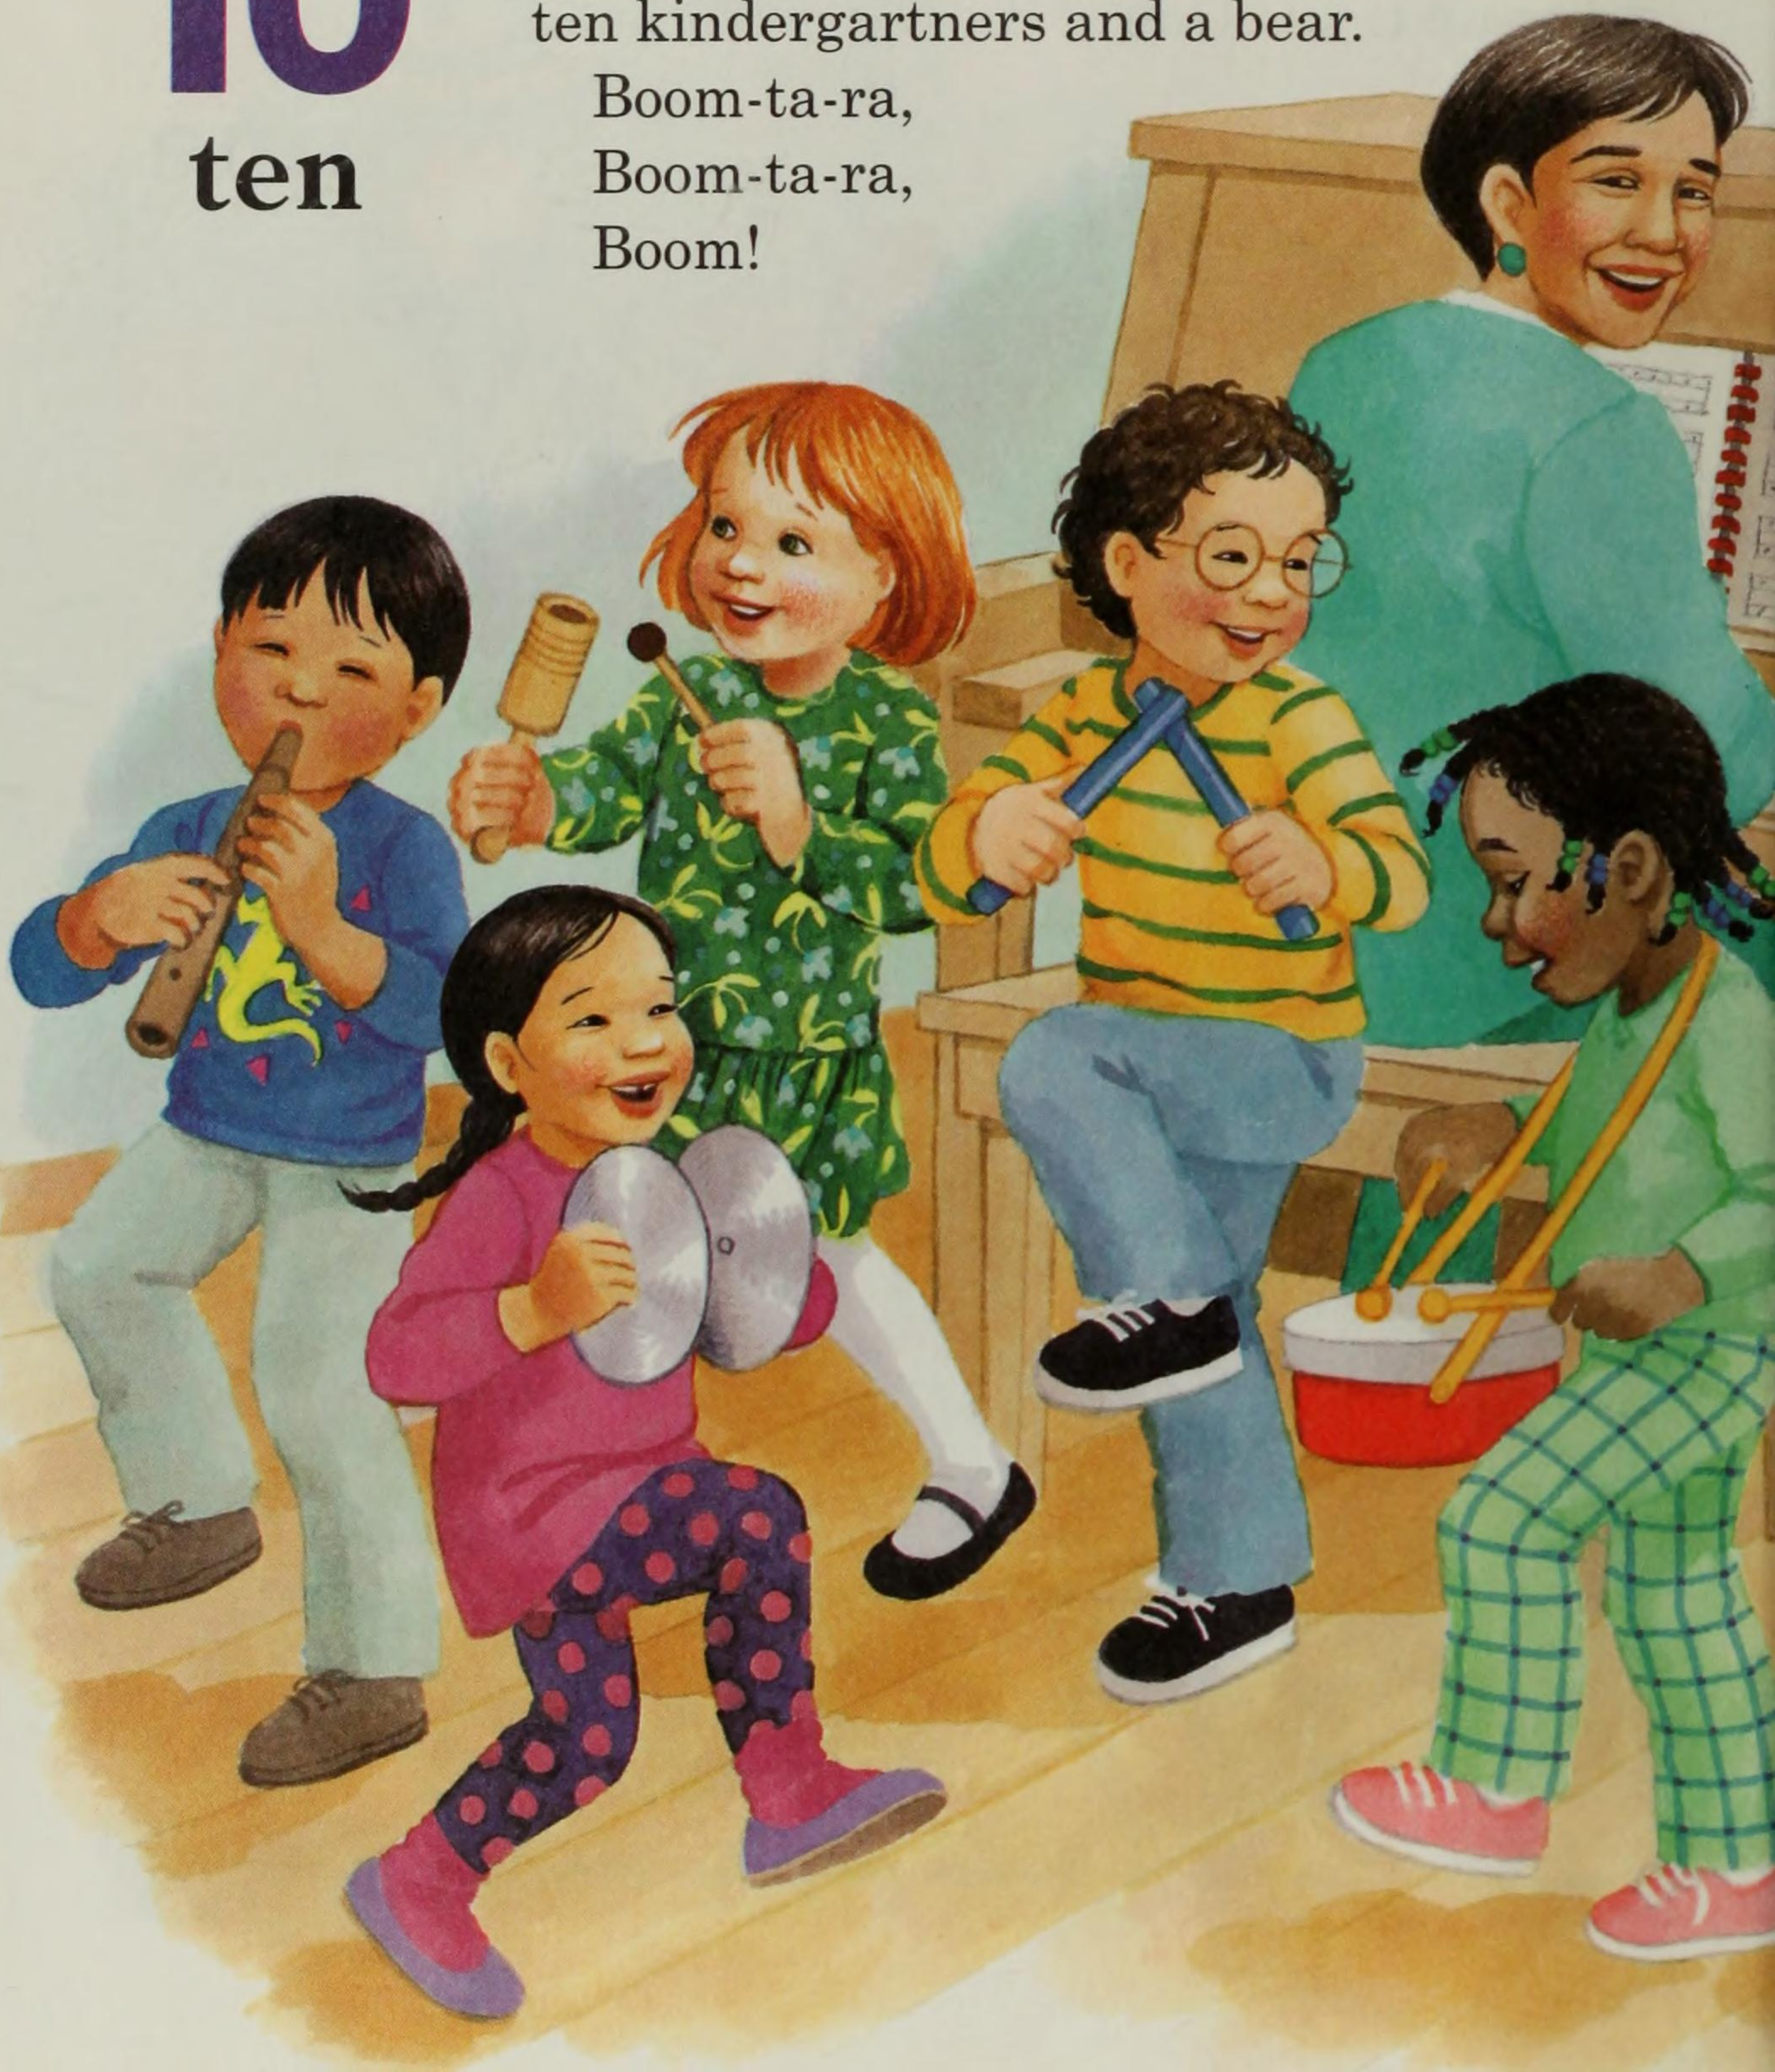
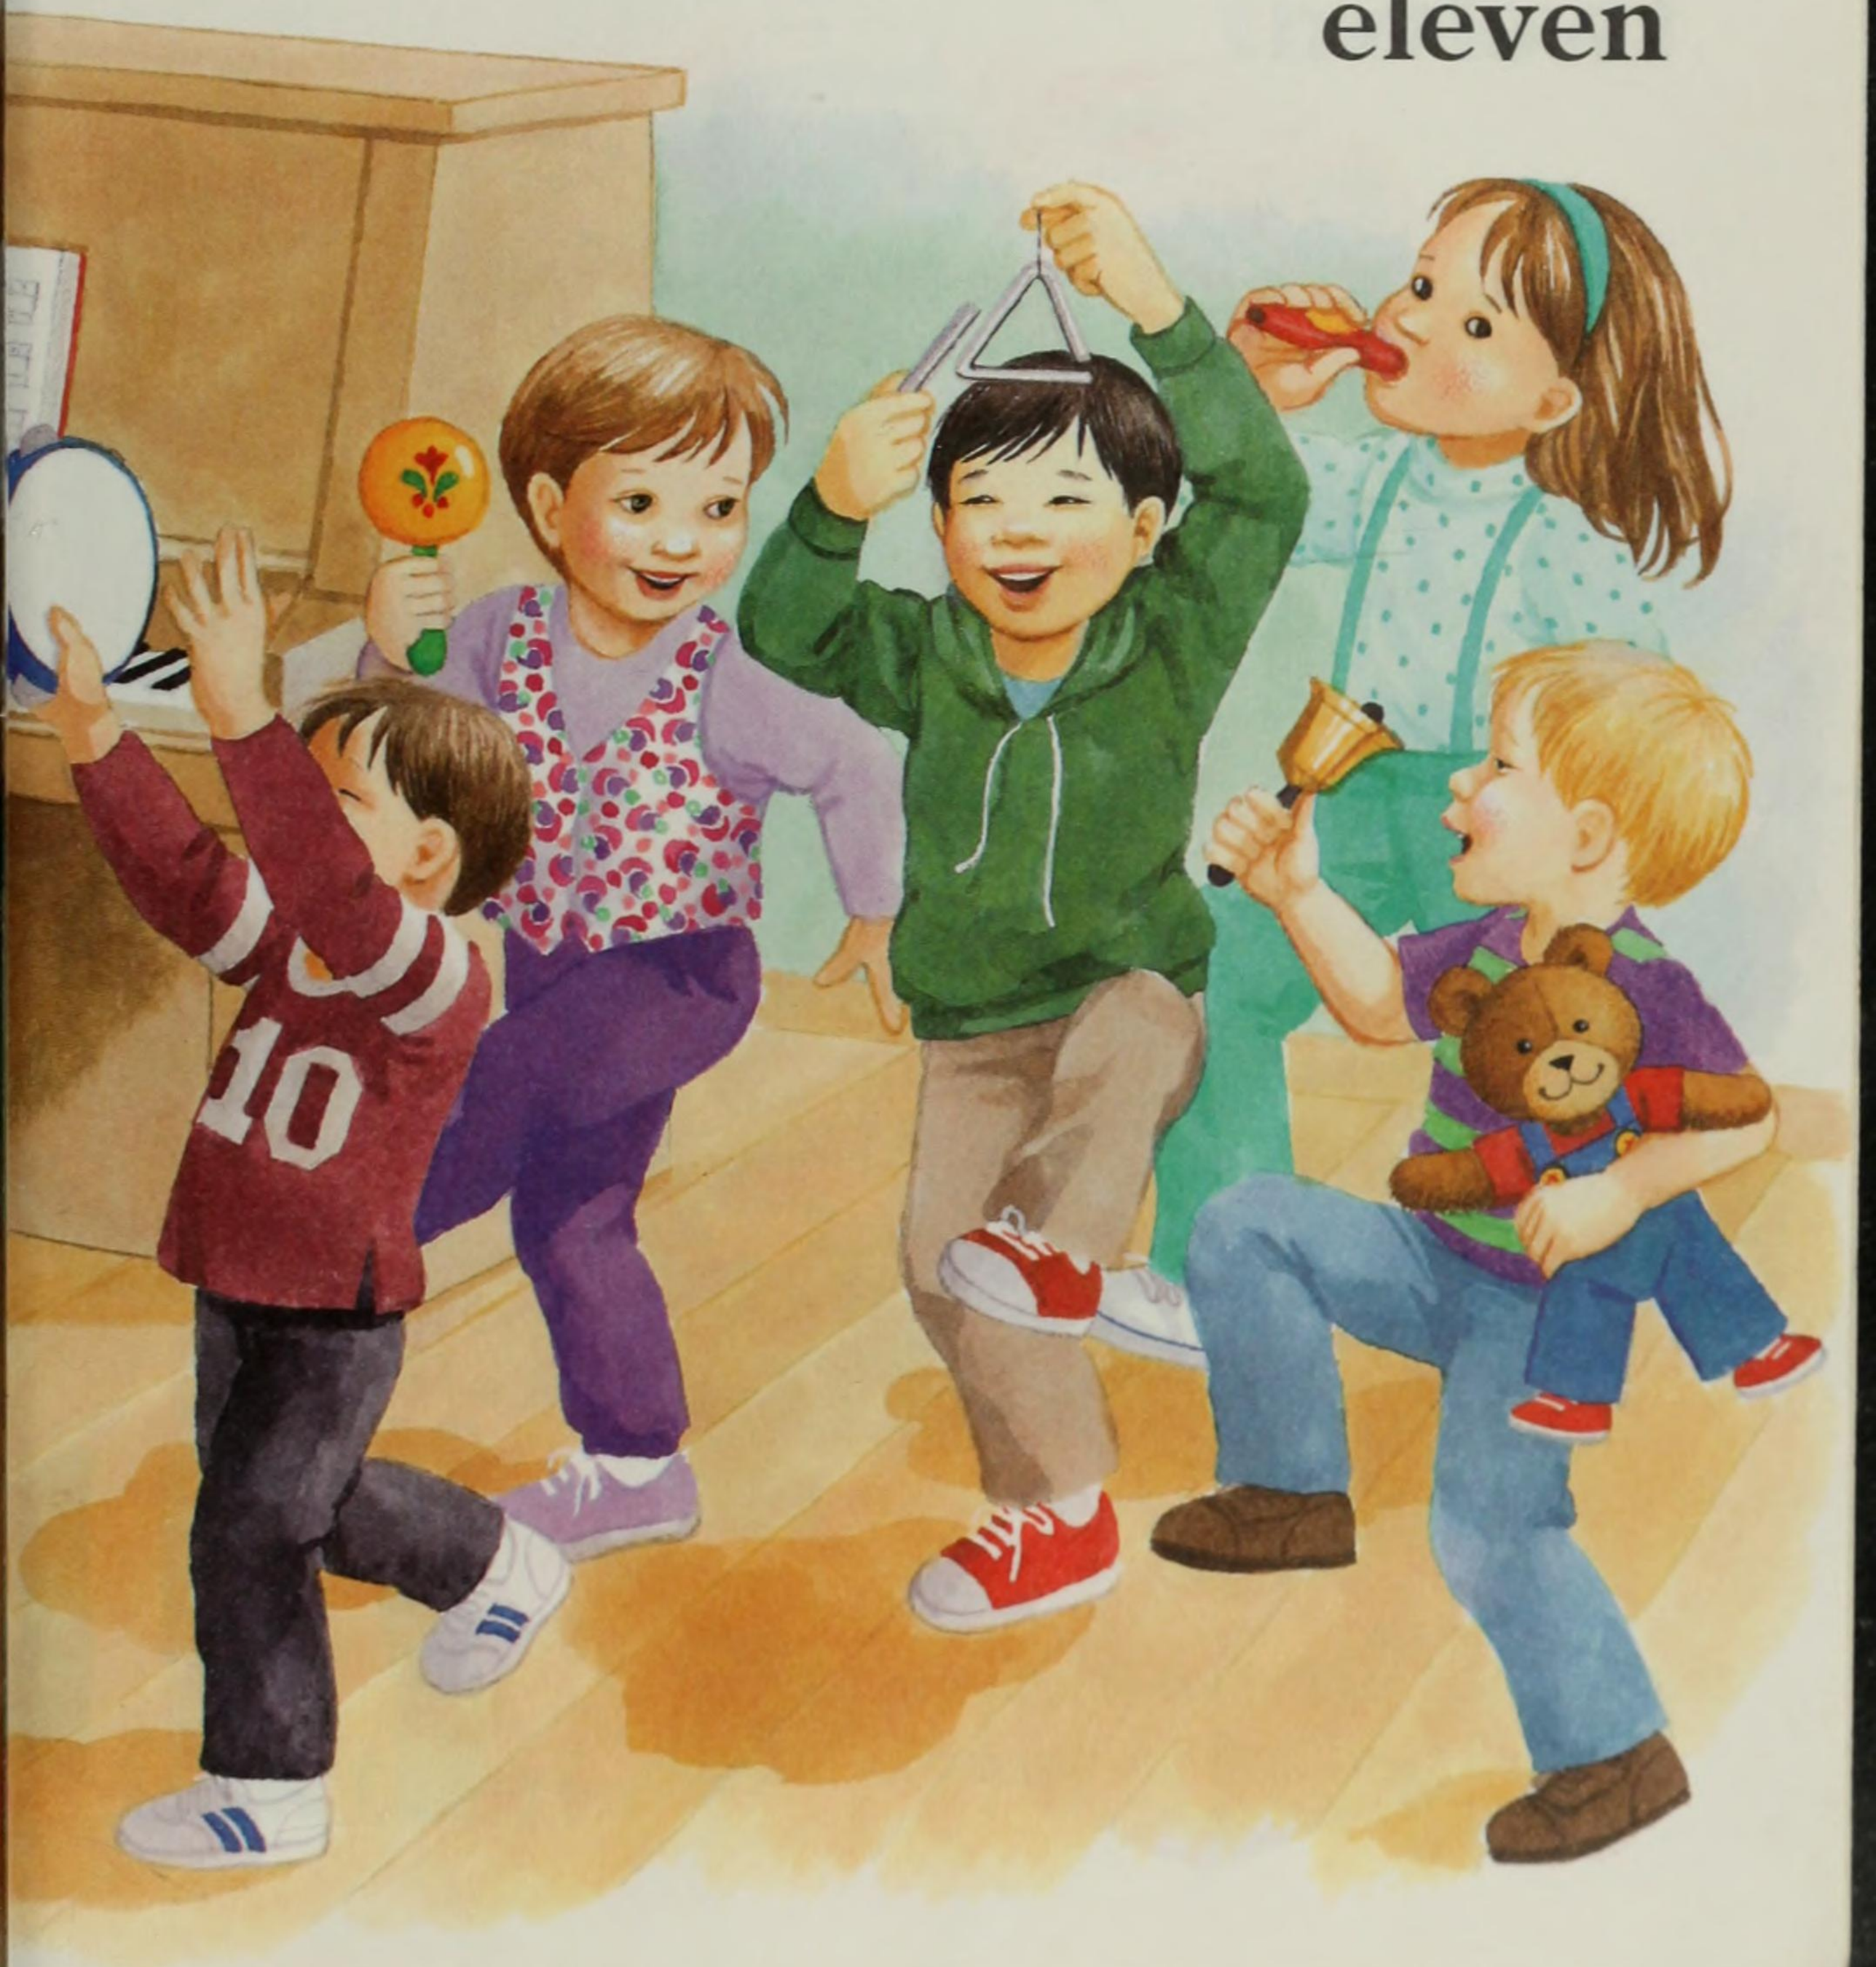
Boom-ta-ra,
Boom-ta-ra,
Boom!



Eleven is next. Count eleven musical instruments. Don't forget the piano.

11

eleven



12
twelve

It's time for lunch. Are you as hungry as I am? Here are twelve lunch boxes for you to count before we eat.

We won't get thirsty at lunchtime.
Count thirteen milk cartons.

13
thirteen

14
fourteen

Here are fourteen apples for dessert.
That's too many for one bear.

Sssh! Don't make noise. Count fifteen kindergartners resting on their mats.
Can you find me? I'm resting, too.

15
fifteen

16
sixteen

I am helping a kindergartner build with blocks. We have sixteen blocks in all. Please count them to make sure.

The teacher is holding a picture of an oak tree. We made paper acorns for the tree. Count seventeen acorns.

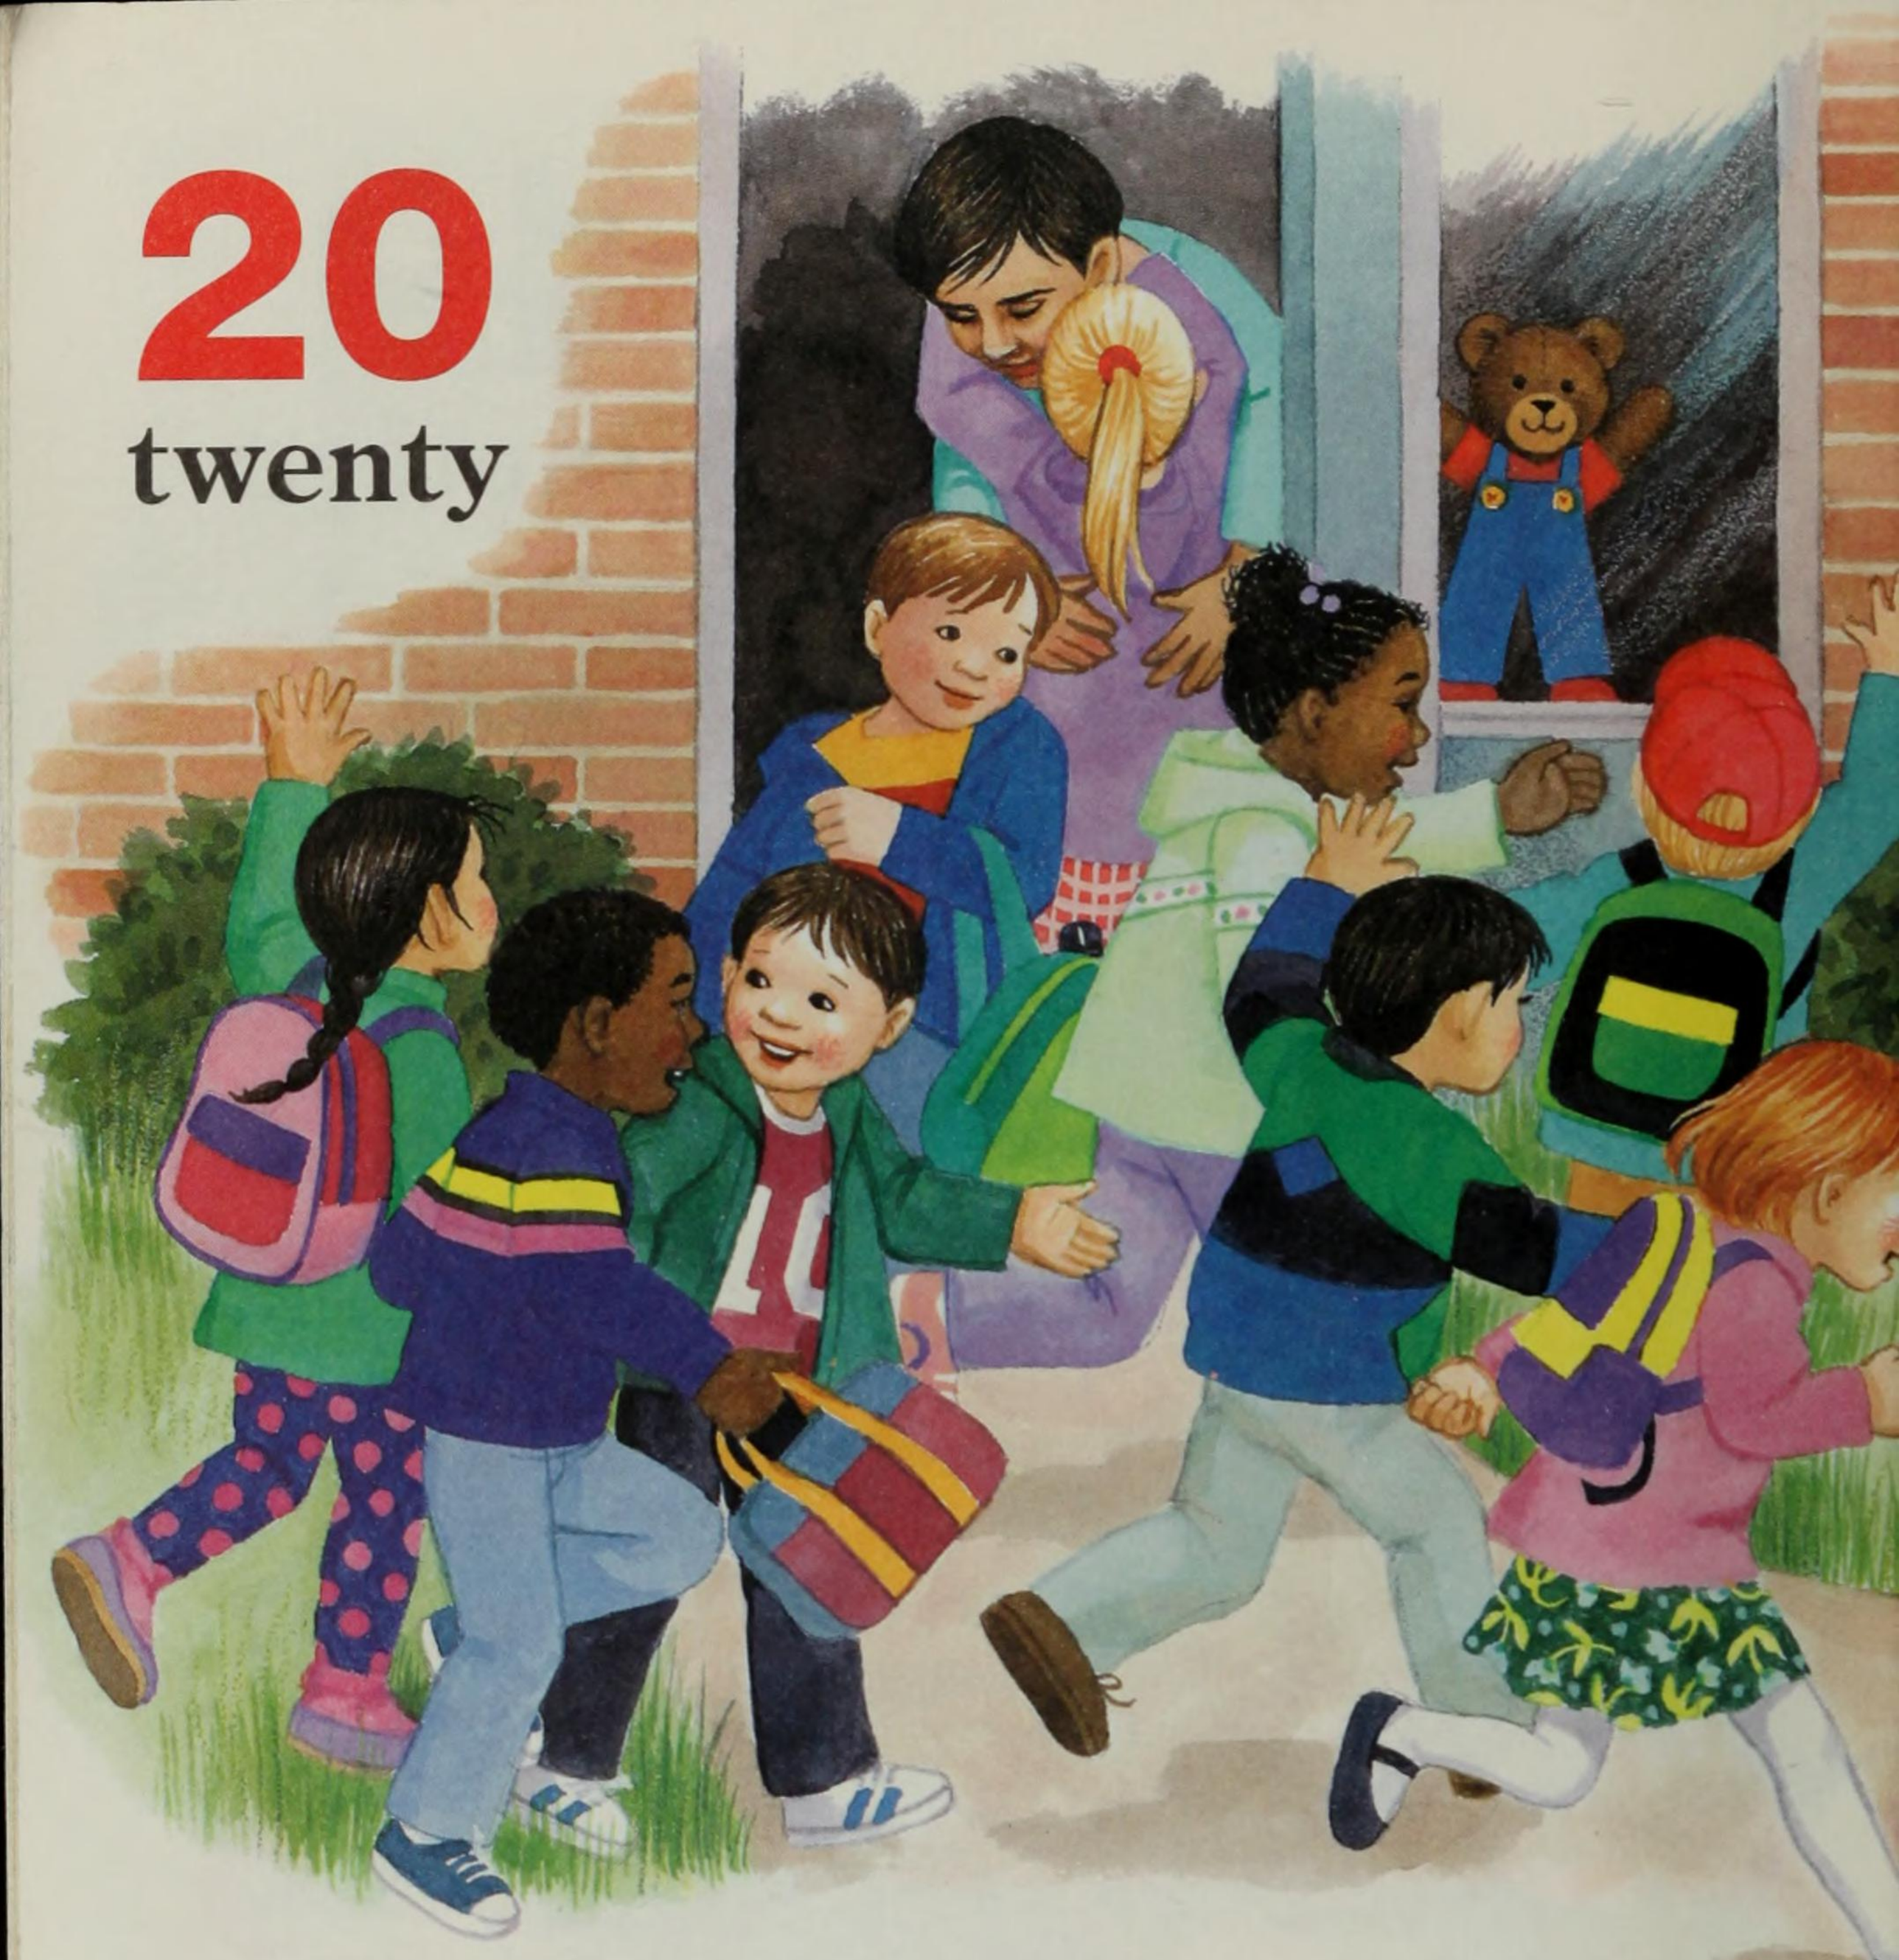
seventeen

We have a computer in our classroom. I see eighteen cows on the computer screen. Please count the cows.

School is almost over for today.
Can you count nineteen toy
dinosaurs before we leave?

19
nineteen

20
twenty



Twenty children go home at the end of the day.
"Good-bye, Kindergarten Bear!" they call.
I'll miss my kindergartners—but I know I'll see them tomorrow.

You're good at this. You counted from one to twenty. And we can do it more than once.

Now, go back to the beginning of the book, and we'll start over again.
